1	I'm 75 yrs. old and finding it difficult to safely move our trash and recycle containers down our front stairs. This is really a problem when it snows heavily and it's icy. At some point I won't be able to do this, so I'll just have to start leaving our bins out on the street/parking strip.	11/17/2021 10:58 AM

3	It would be hard for me a heathy 71 year old to get the trash to the street and back.	11/12/2021 4:08 AM
4	We cannot navigate that but use 9th ave for pickup	11/11/2021 7:38 PM
5	It is very difficult to move the trash bins to the street. My husband can do it, but I cannot. It is dangerous. We are elderly (74 and 75) and I worry that in a few years, we will not be able to do this.	11/11/2021 4:32 PM

1	Because the trash trucks are no longer coming through the alley, large, dangerous items are being placed there by residents. We must drive through the alley to our garage. We are worried that more and more items will make the alley inaccessible. One neighbor put a large sheet of glass (maybe 2X5') in the alley which is propped on the wall of his garage which faces the street. I'm afraid that it will be damaged and break causing a hazard.	11/11/2021 4:32 PM

1	I have real problems getting our cars out of our garage (alley access only) and out the end of the alley onto 8th Ave. because the snowplows put the snow into the end of the alleys - blocking them. I'm 75 yrs. old and am finding it more and more difficult and dangerous to hand shovel the snow in the alley and end of the alley to get out. I've lived here for 43 years and I've always depended on the old trash trucks to smash the snow down.	11/17/2021 10:58 AM
2	Trash trucks are not snow control. Who made this statement? This is misleading.	11/11/2021 10:08 PM
3	I didn't realize this but of course, it will be a big obstacle. Also getting our car out of the garage which is off the alley.	11/11/2021 7:38 PM
4	We store the bins on the side of our house, BUT, we relied on the trash trucks to smash the snow down so our car could get out of the alley. We live mid-block.	11/11/2021 4:32 PM
